

For his third generous offering of comedy gold at GFStripe, Richard Herring is getting a bit desperate. At 39 years old, he's still making jokes about monkey semen, is wilfully nose-diving into middle-aged pedantry and what's more the love stakes are looking decidedly low. The makings of a midlife crisis? Yes, we thought so too, but – well you don't like to say, do you? Still, a life of misanthropic singledom doesn't have to be all doom and gloom – at least his misogyny is postmodern and ironic, unlike Bernard Manning's (actually, is that a good thing?) And he can always take heart in his experience with the carwash company rather carelessly named 'The Hand Job Centre'...

"The sexiest, most seductive comedy on the fringe"
