

When advertising executive Keith Graham is fired from his job, little did he know that it would set off a chain of events that would lead to him taking a stand-up comedy show to the Edinburgh Festival.

Faced with a cheating wife, world class stand-ups, gag hags and financial ruin, will Keith step up to the mic or will he be crushed by the greatest arts festival in the world?

This comedy about comedy was shot on location at the Edinburgh Festival and features a cast of festival veterans.

Written and produced by Alan Freestone, Fergus March and James Wren

Directed by Alan Freestone and Fergus March.

Music by Holy Goats and Flash Fiktion

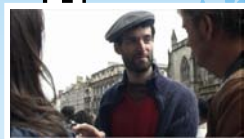

The Edinburgh Festival film made on a budget of £58
