

Robin asks can you be happy and rational at the same time. Join him in a world of Schrödinger cats, multiverses and evolutionary conundrums. Spend an entertaining evening in Robin's company as he orienteers through the craggy landscape of evolution whilst plumbing the depths of his own murky consciousness, all without the aid of a safety net.

In 1986, teenaged Robin Ince made a decision he would come to regret in later life. He chose his A-levels. He rejected his early love of science and instead chose arts subjects.

In later years, Robin has rediscovered his love of science, putting this to good use curating his series of science loving Christmas shows, co-presenting Radio 4's Infinite Monkey Cage, and culminating perhaps in the show you now hold in your hands. This is Happiness Though Science.

This DVD includes a feature length commentary by Robin with his Monkey Cage partner Brian Cox.
